

INVITATION TO A DINNER TALK

LIFTING THE VEIL – AUSTRALIAN MUSLIM OF THE YEAR SPEAKS HER MIND

by

SUSAN CARLAND

on Saturday, 1 September 2007, KLCC

Susan Carland is a lecturer in the school of Political and Social Inquiry at Monash University where she specialises in gender studies and sociology. She is currently completing her PhD, researching leadership challenges facing Western Muslim women. In 2004, she was awarded 'Australian Muslim of the Year'.

Susan is a grass-roots youth worker with Muslim young people at the Islamic Council of Victoria. She is a creator and panelist on the multi-award winning national community television program Salam Cafe, and is often consulted for commentary about Islam and Muslims in a variety of mainstream media.

Susan has been invited to speak extensively to Muslims and non-Muslims around Australia and internationally on Islam, Muslim women and the Australian Muslim experience, with appointments as varied as the International Women's Day address at Victorian Parliament House and Chatham House in London. Susan is a state-coordinator for the Train the Trainers Course in Dawah and Dialogue. She is married with 2 children.
